

CAMERON EDITOR SPEAKS AT PRESS ASSOCIATION

PRESIDENT PRAISES NEWS FOR INITIATIVE IN CROP CON- TESTS.

Tyler, Texas, June 18.—The rising tide of development in North, South, east and West Texas makes the present one of the more momentous epochs in the history of Texas, President Albert H. Luker of the Texas Press Association said here Thursday in his address before the opening session of the forty-sixth annual convention of that body.

"The future is aglow with promises," President Luker said, reciting the rapid advance of the textile industry over the State, the increase of the cotton industry in East Texas, the railroad and empire building in West Texas and concluding with reference to the Statewide benefit of the "more cotton on fewer acres" gospel which the Dallas News and The Semi-Weekly Farm News are sponsoring.

"It is our privilege," he concluded, "to chronicle the onward march of events and our duty to point the hand of progress in the right direction."

The Blackstone Hotel was filled with 300 or more members and visitors early Thursday, many arriving the night before from every portion of the State, traveling by train, interurban, bus, and private automobiles.

Publishers and owners of the press of Texas were present in full force, the many veterans of journalism in Texas renewing old acquaintances and meeting the new recruits that have come in during the last year, while almost a fifth of those present are representatives of allied industries to the publishing business.

The opening session got away to schedule time Thursday morning, although important items that will gain the attention of the convention later in the three-day session have already started off-side discussion. These matters include the succession, the next meeting place and the various important resolutions which are expressed to bring out sharp differences of opinion.

The name of Billy Smith, publisher of the San Saba News, is being most prominently mentioned as president to succeed Mr. Luker of the Grapeland Messenger. Mr. Smith is vice president of the organization at this time and his election, it is expected, will be unopposed.

Robt. L. Baldrige of the Clifton Record will be named vice president, according to a number of prominent leaders, who claim that his candidacy will be unopposed. Sam P. Harben of Richardson, for the last seventeen years secretary of the association, will be re-elected, it is also indicated, and C. F. Lehman of San Antonio, veteran treasurer, will in all probability be re-elected.

Texarkana, San Antonio and El Paso delegations all came to the convention determined to gain the 1926 gathering for their respective cities. By Thursday afternoon, however, it appeared that Texarkana has decided to make a strong bid for the convention two years hence, and the race has narrowed down to the other two cities, with El Paso slightly the stronger.

Chief among the resolutions which are being presented to the committee on these matters are those dealing with the school of journalism of the University of Texas, which was cut off by veto of Gov. Ferguson; co-operation with the State Medical Association in aiding the enforcement of the medical practices act; opposition to the newly inaugurated increases in second, third and fourth-class postal rates, and indorsement of the international press foundation project for a home at Alamonte, Fla., for superannuated newspaper men.

Tom Finty, Jr., editor of the Dallas Journal, who is attending the convention, is an honorary State vice president of the movement.

Although most resolutions will be referred to the committee, Sam E. Miller of the Mineral Wells Index indicated Thursday that he will present the resolution on the Texas school of journalism at the Friday (Continued on last page)

Big Preparations Under Way For Fourth July Celebration

All committees appointed by the American Legion for the big Fourth of July celebration to be staged in Rockdale July 4-6 are functioning properly and indications now point to one of the biggest celebrations of its kind Milam county has ever held.

The American Legion Posts of Rockdale and Cameron are co-operating in the work, and the interest is widespread over the county that the people are interested and are coming to Rockdale July 4 and 6. Crowds are also expected from Georgetown, Bartlett, Granger, Taylor, Giddings, Caldwell, Calvert, Hearne and other towns.

Race horse men are now encamped at fair grounds and are daily working out their racers, while it is said that several racing automobiles are being groomed for the auto races. The baseball game will be between Bartlett and Rogers, and both teams are being strengthened for the game.

Dr. C. E. Wiscup is grooming the Rockdale-Thorndale Band to furnish music for the occasion, and the speaking committee is on the job, while the concessions committee is arranging its work so that nobody will go hungry or thirsty.

On account of the 4th coming on Saturday the Legion will not ask business houses to close that day, but Monday, July 6th, is expected to be the big holiday, and everybody will be expected to come that day and bring their picnic baskets.

The celebration will close Monday night with a big dance at Fair Park pavilion.

The official program will be published in the papers of the county next week.

THRALL PLANS TARTU- TING CITY STREETS.

Seek to Establish Parole Trust On Wilson Estate

Notice of a suit pending has been filed with County Clerk Lillian Atkinson in cause 9385, District Court of Milam county, Texas, filed June 23, 1925, wherein Mrs. Kate Rogers, joined by her husband J. B. Rogers, and Mrs. Willie Rogers joined by her husband W. F. Rogers, are plaintiffs, and Mrs. Jennie M. Porter, Mrs. Ella Powell Tyson, John W. House and Jeff Kemp, as executor of the estate of Lizzie B. Wilson, deceased, are defendants.

The plaintiffs seek to establish a parole trust on all the property described in a deed executed by W. S. G. Wilson, May 17, 1884, recorded in Milam, Bell and Falls counties, and they pray for a judgment decreeing that one half of said property was held by Lizzie B. Wilson at the time of her death in 1921, in trust for the use and benefit of the five brothers and sisters, or their heir at law, of W. S. G. Wilson, and fixing the beneficial interest of the plaintiffs in said property as being an undivided one tenth thereof and asking for a decree of partition of said property in conformity with terms of said trust and for such further relief to which they may be entitled.

The probating of the will of Mrs. Wilson was contested in County and District Courts of Milam county and contestants lost. An appeal to Court of Civil Appeals at Austin was taken but not prosecuted and was dismissed in that Court.

Judge Jeff T. Kemp as Executor administered the estate and Administration has been closed.

The petition is signed by Pat M. Neff and Jos. W. Hale attorneys for plaintiffs.

The case will be on the appearance docket of September term of the District Court of Milam County, Texas.

MRS. R. L. BATTE, JR. IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

SUCCUMBS SUDDENLY AFTER ILLNESS OF SOME THREE WEEKS.

"Death should come gently to one of gentle mould, like thee

As light winds, wandering through groves of bloom,
Detach the delicate blossoms from the tree

Close thy sweet eyes calmly, and without pain,
And we will trust in God to see the yet again."

Death came into the home R. L. Batte, Jr., on Saturday evening at 9:30 p. m. and robbed him of its brightest jewel, the treasured wife and mother of three little children Patricia, R. L. Jr., and Baby Leila Marie. Surely no sadder words than these could be penned. The passing of a beautiful young wife and mother was the occasion for the outpouring of love and sympathy of a wide circle of friends.

The funeral of Mrs. Jewel Batte was held at 4 p. m. Sunday afternoon from the palatial home of Mr. R. L. Batte, Sr., on the Maysfield Road and a very large concourse of relatives and friends assembled for the services and pay a tribute of love and sympathy to the doubly bereaved family who have been twice this year called to pass through a similar experience.

Mrs. Batte had been sick for three weeks but grew worse a short time before her death. Her mother and sisters did not reach her bedside until after her passing. Mr. Batte's mother had been a devoted nurse and she had been assisted by skilled help but to no avail.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. R. S. Marshall, pastor of the Cameron Methodist church of which Mrs. Batte had been for several years a member. Her pastor told of her re-consecration to her Christian vows.

Mrs. Jewel Batte, was the daughter of Mrs. Minnie Stribling of Waco. She was born in Rockdale, February 20 1898. She was married in 1907 to R. L. Batte, Jr., and her husband and three small children, to whom she has been a most devoted mother, survive her.

Her casket was of pink embossed velvet with soft frills and draperies of the same roseate tint.

Friends covered her mound in Oak Hill Cemetery with a wealth of handsome flowers.

Attending her funeral from a distance were her mother Mrs. Minnie Stribling and her two sisters, Mrs. Charles Jones and Miss Lois Stribling of Waco. Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Lastinger and Mrs. Lastinger of Dallas, Mr. and Mrs. John Cammer of Galveston, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Phillips, Mesdames Edgar and W. C. Phillips, Mrs. Lightfoot of Rockdale Mr. and Mrs. Willard Chambers of Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Lyles of Temple, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Colburn of Rogers, and many others.

LION'S CLUB.

The Lion's Club celebrated annual "Ladies night" with a barbecue supper at the County Club at which members of the Lions' families were guests.

A delegation from the Rockdale Lions Club accepted an invitation to participate in the pleasures of this most enjoyable occasion.

Monday June 22, 1925, Judge Edward F. English made four hearts happy at the court house in Cameron when he united in marriage with one solemnity Lloyd T. Smith and Miss Ellen Horton and Roy V. Campbell and Miss Minnie Merle Mayac. Both couples came from places outside Milam county.

Rainfall ranging from half an inch to two and three-fourth inches fell over a large area of Milam county last Saturday afternoon. A large scope of territory east of Cameron extending to Branchville received beneficial rainfall. In the southern portion of the county various reports have been received stating that the rainfall varied from a half to two inches.

Out near Fayette one man says two and three-fourth inches fell, while reports from one mile west of Cameron indicate that an inch of rain fell over a small area.

Maysfield reports good showers the precipitation being about one inch.

The rainfall in Cameron amounted to about half an inch or a little more.

Crops on the sandy lands has been holding up remarkably well, while the black land is suffering. With more rain occasionally it is likely that there will be a fairly good crop of cotton made. The bottom land cotton is said to be hardest hit. Many say that good rain within the next week or ten days will recuperate the cotton in the bottom, but there are no hopes for corn, however there is yet a chance for cane and hay.

AMARILLO MAN VISITS INDIAN BATTLE GROUND.

J. L. Smith of Amarillo, brother of Mrs. J. M. Ralston, is her guest this week. On Wednesday they made a motor trip to the old Indian battle ground on Elm Creek in which their grand father Camelback Smith, as he was known to the early settlers of Milam county on account of his having round shoulders, ably commanded the settlers. The Comanche Chief was singled out and killed by him as the war painted whooping band of savages circled around the log cabin where the Smith's and their neighbors were barricaded. Mrs. Ralston's father was a small boy and early on the day of the fight he was sent to the "Allen Spring" for buckets of water. He saw in the distance what he thought was a herd of buffalo but which he soon found to be mounted Comanches. He barely arrived at home before the Indians surrounded the alarmed families who had every thing in readiness in wagons to leave this part of the country. Mrs. Ralston's grand mother bravely left the barred cabin and went to the wagon to get lead and bullet molds which had already been packed. She made a safe return and moulded bullets until the savages were beaten and driven away. These heroic pioneers returned to live here later and their descendants are numbered among the best of the citizenship of Texas.

Was Not All Cave Man

By BAYARD D. YORK

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

A cherubic smile broadened Buell Goodrich's round face. Then he scowled deeply and banged up the receiver.

Alice Cranston had suggested that he take her out to her aunt's for supper. "Mother says it will be all right," she had added.

"They seem to think I'm some sort of cute little mamma's boy," he growled. "To—to the devil with goodness!" he exploded. "From this moment I'm a demon. I'll cheat, lie, and steal. I'll—"

A knock at the door interrupted. The man who entered explained that he had called to see Mr. Kane next door, but had discovered that he was out of town. He tapped a package under his arm suggestively.

"It's an unusual quality," he said. "Just in from Scotland. And the price is an even fifty. A rare opportunity."

Buell had suddenly realized the nature of the man's errand.

"Say," he yelled; "what do you think—"

The man slipped out. "Might have known you were a parson," he called back.

He'd take Alice to—to—for a moment he searched his mind fruitlessly. Ah, he had it—he'd take her to Hollyhock house, out on the Beach road, a place much more lurid than its name suggested.

And then the phone rang again.

"Aunt isn't home, I find," Alice said. "So don't bother—"

"Alice," he interrupted—"I'll call you in ten minutes. I warn you—it'll be a wild evening."

Buell was not familiar with places like the Hollyhock.

The headwaiter seemed to get the idea quickly. He found a secluded spot where the music floated past with that soft distant tone which lends enchantment.

"This is wonderful," Alice breathed. "But what in the world has come over you, Buell?"

He leaned back and motioned a waiter with a stiff finger.

"Sherry," he ordered.

"Buell!" Alice cried. "I don't drink, and I know you don't."

"Tonight," he stated solemnly; "We do—both of us."

"And then," he concluded, "we are going to go and get married."

The girl's eyes flashed dangerously. In another moment the test of will power between them would have been on in earnest had not an interruption occurred.

It was remarkable how suddenly silence fell over the crowded dining room and how rapidly the word passed from table to table.

"The police! A raid!"

Buell saw the wild look of dismay deepen on Alice's face—and he suddenly realized that because of his crazy lark she would be dragged through the publicity of this affair.

Well—he'd pull the chestnuts out of the fire.

The first steps proved to be ridiculously easy. Buell raised a window, stepped out, and lifted Alice through the opening—to find himself facing an officer.

Buell did not hesitate. Being an honest man, he acted worse than many a criminal would have. His cherubic appearance worked in his favor—for the officer was totally unprepared for the swift upstart which laid him flat on the ground.

In a second Buell and Alice were in their car—and off on the Beach road. A moment later, the sound of pursuit came sharply to their ears.

"More cave-man stuff," he muttered.

The next instant he had jumped in and whirled away around a sharp turn in the road.

Half an hour later Alice stepped from the trolley. She was safely back in town—but her thoughts were of Buell.

"May I walk with you?" said a voice at her side.

She jumped violently.

"Buell Goodrich!" she cried. "Where did you come from?"

"I just alighted from the trolley," Buell murmured. "I thought we'd better not be seen together on it."

"But—your car?" she questioned.

"My little roadster," he replied, "lies in a watery grave somewhere in the Atlantic. The inspiration came to me just as I left you—and I ran the car off the cliff and doubled back and caught the trolley by the coat tails."

He stopped. A hurrying pedestrian jostled him.

"I know this isn't the time and the place," he said. "But it's taken me a long time to get up my courage, Alice, and if I don't speak now I may think again. Do—do you think that—some—time, maybe in June, you would marry me?"

She smiled a little.

"I rather expected you'd catch me by the hair of the head and drag me to the nearest clergyman's," she murmured.

"No," he replied. "You see, after all, I'm not all cave-man."

Plenty of Time

"But this is a mauve taxicab."

"Yes, sir."

"My wife cautioned me to order a peagreen and pink."

"Is the call urgent, sir?"

"Judge for yourself. She is dressing for the theater now."

"Ah, is well. That will give me ample time to have the car redecorated. We strive to please."

EVERY TEXAN WILL AID LEGION FUND IF HE REALIZES NEED.

The State Legion Commander of Texas, Mark McGee, says that Texas will respond wholeheartedly to the appeal for support of the Legion endowment fund for disabled veterans and orphans of former service men, and that everyone will do his part if he understands the needs and purposes of the fund.

"There are 35,000 war orphans, and many times that number of sick and disabled ex-service men whose lives have been blighted by the war," Commander McGee said.

"We cannot do too much for them. Our debt can never be fully repaid. The American Legion has assumed the obligation of seeing that these two consequences of the war receive a full measure of justice, but we need the public's assistance to the limit."

On a farm near San Antonio, amidst the onions and spinach, a cow and a young flock of chickens, is a living example of the justice and wisdom of aiding any man who lost his health in the service of his flag, and needed but a helping hand in the period of his illness to place him once more among the self-supporting, valuable citizens of any community.

This living example is Bura J. Evans, who, but a short time ago, lay in a government hospital fighting tuberculosis contracted in the service. He is one of the 687,158 disabled men who requested the government to aid him, and is one of the 83,818 men who actually have been rehabilitated. There have been 379,515 men whose requests could not be granted by the government, and thousands of other disabled veterans who, through ignorance of their rights, or discouragement have not asked aid.

It is for these unfortunate men that The American Legion, with a record of already having helped thousands when that organization did not know from time to time where the finances would be obtained, now is raising a national endowment fund to carry on such work permanently. The fund also will provide homes and education for the helpless babies of former service men.

The success of Evans is a fair example of what will be done by any disabled man who, by very reason of his trying days of service when he carried on bravely, giving his all for his country, today is a loyal citizen with a serious mind.

Evans won his battle with the dreaded white plague and is making come true a dream he nursed as he lay helpless in a government hospital. He was given training in scientific agriculture and proceeded to acquire a farm of his own.

This year the disabled man counted $2,000 worth of onions and nearly that much spinach among his sales. He has a tractor, a cow and chickens. Since going to the farm he has purchased an additional 120 acres.

And today, while Evans is happily on the road to health and prosperity, Texas communities are going over the top in raising their share of the endowment fund for the others who have not been so fortunate. Every Texan, when the needs and purposes of the endowment fund have been understood is doing his part.

OILING IN MOSQUITO CONTROL.

The Texas State Board of Health gives out the following:

The value of oiling stagnant or partially stagnant water to prevent mosquito breeding has long been known, but there have been adverse ideas as to method of applying the oil to water, the most common methods used being that of the ordinary spray and the drip can.

The main disadvantages of these two methods are that with the spray, unless it is thrown very fine, the oil will remain in globules instead of spreading out in a film; and the drip can requires inspection every few hours to insure a regular flow, due to clogging.

E. M. Scarbrough

The following tribute from the Austin American to Mr. E. M. Scarbrough will be read with interest by Cameron friends.

Mr. Scarbrough was a brother in law of the late Mrs. Lizzie B. Wilson and of Mr. Henry Ledbetter and many of his relatives live in Milam county.

In the death of Mr. E. M. Scarbrough the State of Texas has lost a most worthy citizen and business is bereft of a Merchant Prince.

Seldom does life witness a character which combined such sterling faith in humanity, such a broad vision of the possibilities of the future, such a clear grasp of the essentials of clean success, and such a genuine sympathy for the man or woman in need, as was found in the life and character of Austin's foremost citizen.

Death quietly removed from Austin commercial circles E. M. Scarbrough, merchant, philanthropist, builder and civic leader. He was found dead in bed at his home early Thursday morning by his son, Lem. The end came peacefully, as persons in the house reported they heard no unusual noise during the night. First knowledge that the aged merchant had passed came with the finding of his lifeless body.

Mr. Scarbrough left his office on Wednesday afternoon to attend the funeral of his lifelong friend, Mrs. Joseph Halle, and later had dinner at the home of J. J. Yeates, personal friend and manager of the Scarbrough department store. At that time he seemed to be in the best of spirits and was feeling well, according to Yeates.

E. M. Scarbrough was born on a farm in Calhoun county, Alabama, May 19, 1846, and was at the time of his death 79 years of age. He came to Texas when he was 21 years of age with $1000 in his pockets and began work as a store clerk at Bryant Station, Milam county.

In 1874 he entered business for himself in Rockdale, Texas, under the firm name of H. P. Hale & Co. In 1883 this Rockdale firm became Scarbrough & Hicks and continued under that name until 1912.

Mr. Scarbrough removed to Austin in 1889 in order to obtain better school advantages for his family and in 1901 the store of Scarbrough & Hicks was opened in Austin, under the management of Mr. Scarbrough. Upon the death of Mr. Hicks, the firm name was changed in 1913 to E. M. Scarbrough & Sons.

In 1909 Mr. Scarbrough erected the handsome office building at Sixth street and Congress avenue which bears his name. This gave him the distinction of being a pioneer in the construction of modern office buildings in Austin.

In a tribute to Mr. Scarbrough appearing in the Austin Statesman on May 19, 1923, on the occasion of his 77th birthday anniversary, the following lines were penned:

Mr. Scarbrough has not received the appreciation that his deeds merit, perhaps, because he is not the type of man who proclaims his kindly deeds from the housetop. He has always been a leader of those who believe in shorter hours and better pay for employees, closing his store at 6 o'clock even on Christmas eve. His employees are always handsomely remembered with cash presents at Christmas. He is said to be the only merchant in Texas who allows employees more than one week's vacation with pay. His employees also enjoy an annual outing at the firm's expense. That tribute in brief sums up the character of the man who has been recognized as the leader in Austin's mercantile business and known as one of the most prominent figures in the mercantile circles of the southwest. On May 19th of this year, he was host to the employees of

USE SULPHUR TO HEAL YOUR SKIN

Broken Out Skin and Itching Eczema Helped Over Night

For unsightly skin eruptions, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment, declares a noted skin specialist. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Mentho-Sulphur brings. Even here, itching eczema is dried right up.

Get a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

his store in the annual picnic held at Barton Springs, which, like all of these delightful affairs Mr. Scarbrough tendered his employees, was well enjoyed.

Mr. Scarbrough was a philanthropist of the quiet, unassuming type. His disinterested liberality was evidenced by his large contributions to all civic, charitable and religious enterprises in the city. Every organization of the city felt the kindness and generosity of E. M. Scarbrough and no one came out of Mr. Scarbrough's office without some word of encouragement and help.

Two years Mr. Scarbrough underwent a serious operation in New York where he was confined to a hospital for 75 days. He recovered from his illness, however, and again assumed the active management of the store he founded in Austin nearly a quarter of a century ago.

Where the younger business men today ride to their work in automobiles, Mr. Scarbrough always walked from his home to the store, a distance of 20 blocks, and was at his work until the store closed each night. At the age of 72 he swam across the river at Deep Eddy, a feat many men a score of years his junior would not attempt.

The passing of Mr. Scarbrough is not alone mourned by his family and employees but by the entire citizenship of Austin and by the business friends over Texas and the nation.

PIONEER CITIZEN DIES AT HOME OF SON AT SHARP.

Mr. Butterfield, pioneer citizen of Milam county, aged about 84 years, died at the home of his son, Richard Butterfield, in the Sharp community Sunday night and was buried in the Salty Cemetery Monday.

The deceased formerly conducted a blacksmith shop and did carpenter work and was very active for many years and a very highly esteemed citizen. He left Milam county in 1918 with his family to make his home in Arkansas and returned to Texas in 1922 and has resided here since that time. His wife died several years ago and he leaves one son in Arkansas and a daughter in Oklahoma besides his son, Richard with whom he made his home at Sharp.—Thorndale Champion.

W. A. HENRY.

At 11 a. m. on Tuesday occurred the funeral of Mr. W. A. Henry, an old time resident of Milam county, at the Marlow Cemetery. A large concourse of friends gathered at the Marlow Baptist church where Rev. R. S. Marshall pastor of the Cameron Methodist church conducted the services. The deceased was a member of the Christian church. He had lived in the Marlow community since 1875. He came of distinguished ancestry. His brother, Judge John Lane Henry of Dallas was at one time Judge of the Supreme Court of Texas. In 1881 Mr. W. A. Henry was married to Miss Jessie Reese daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Reese. His wife and three sons survive him. Among those attending his funeral were his nephew, Dick Tyndall, his wife and two sons of Waco. Several friends from Cameron.

IDEAL RESORT.

Grand Canyon, Ariz., June 22.—Contrary to the general belief, the Grand Canyon National Park is an ideal summer ground, according to records kept by the National Park Service of the Interior Department. These show that the weather during the summer months is uniformly cool and delightful. During the day, the temperature never reaches an uncomfortably high mark, and the high altitude insures cool nights when blankets are needed even during the warmest weather. On the north rim, water is apt to freeze almost any night during the year. In the canyon depths high temperatures are encountered, but even here the exceeding dryness of the air makes the sensible temperature much lower than that actually registered on the thermometer as compared to a more humid climate.

BILIOUSNESS

Retired Minister Tells How He Keeps in Good Form.

The Rev. Lewis Evans, a well-known retired minister, past 80, living at West Graham, Va., says: "For years I had been suffering with my liver. Sometimes the pain would be very intense and my back would hurt all the time. Black-Draught was the first thing I found that would give me any relief."

"My liver has always been sluggish. Sometimes it gives me a lot of trouble. I have suffered a lot with it—pains in my side and back, and bad headache, caused from extreme biliousness."

"After I found Black-Draught, I would begin to take it as soon as I felt a spell coming on and it relieved the cause at once. I can recommend it to anybody suffering from liver trouble. A dose or two now and then keeps me in good form."

Notice to School Patrons

In accordance with the policy of the school board made public some months ago one section of each of the first three grades will be maintained at the old grammar school building and one section of each of these grades will be maintained at the new building. All students in grades beginning with the fourth will be housed in the new building.

For convenience in determining what building pupils of the first, second and third grades shall attend the town has been divided into two zones. Zone number 1 includes all territory south of eleventh street. Zone number 2 includes all territory north of eleventh street. All children of grades one, two and three who live south of eleventh street will attend the old grammar school, and children of the first three grades who reside north of eleventh street will attend the new school, provided that any parent may transfer children from one zone to another by making written application for such transfer to the superintendent of schools before July 15. This gives all patrons the choice of having their children of the first three grades attend either building.

Specifications for repairing the old grammar school building have been approved and a contract for the work will be let in the near future.

By order of the School Board.

The Eyes of Evil

By BAYARD D. YORK

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

BACK in town, the eighteen-mile drive to Clayton Beach had seemed like a simple venture. And even now, as the world darkened ominously beneath the thickening clouds and the deserted summer cottages rose in dreary lines before her, Marion Hamilton entertained no thought of turning back.

"I know just where I left that letter," she thought. "I'll run up and get it—and in five minutes be on my way home again."

The letter had been tossed into the top drawer of her dresser and forgotten. This afternoon she had remembered its existence; and acting impulsively, had set out in her coupe. Without the letter, her father faced trial and possible conviction as a thief; in it, if she remembered the contents correctly, he possessed a convincing alibi.

As she slipped the key into the lock she glanced over her shoulder. Surely this sullen gray-green monster was not the ocean whose sparkling summer moods she loved so much! She entered, and, with swift glances to either side, hurried up the stairs to the door of her room.

It was evident that the room had been thoroughly ransacked. She rushed to the dresser. Intuition told her at once what a careful search confirmed—the letter was gone!

She rushed from the room—and stopped with staring eyes. From around a corner of the hallway appeared a man's head, the face unshaven, the eyes gleaming from the gloom. With a smothered cry Marion turned and ran down the stairs, caught her heel and fell. She arose with a sickening sense of pain. At the first step her left ankle crumpled under her; the room whirled away into blackness, and she slipped limply to the floor.

Consciousness returned slowly; but as she finally regained a moderate degree of clearness of mind she noted that a wet towel was being held against her forehead and that a man stood beside her. He was not the one whose face she had seen upstairs—but he impressed her no less unpleasantly. His young face bore the prints of dissipation and a steely light gleamed in his somewhat shifty eyes. She rose to her feet.

"Will you help me to my car—" she began.

The young man laughed shortly. "Bad night for traveling," he suggested. "You'll stay here."

"What are you doing here?" she demanded. "About a year ago your father tried to put Sandy Lane behind the bars," he said. "Your father was warned, but he persisted. That was a mistake. Your father knows now—he's going to pay the penalty."

"You are Sandy Lane," she murmured involuntarily.

"That doesn't matter," he remarked. "You are Arthur Hamilton's daughter—that's what counts. I guess—"

Marion heard no more. At that instant she saw again the man with the unshaven face. He was moving slowly down the stairs.

Fascination and terror held her motionless.

Then one of the stairs creaked. The young man whirled with the speed of lightning. The big man rushed past her.

The short struggle was titanic. Once their bodies struck the table at Marion's side and the table crumpled like a thing of cardboard. She moved back, each step on her sprained ankle hurting cruelly.

And suddenly she realized that she had an opportunity to be something more than an idle onlooker. The young man was on his back now, still struggling violently, but very evidently losing the fight. But Marion could see what the bigger man had failed to notice—that a revolver had fallen to the floor from somewhere and that the young man's hand was groping for it.

And then she sprang forward and snatched the revolver away. Instinctively she had decided that of the two she would rather throw herself on the mercy of the older man.

The latter rose presently and yanked the other man to a sitting position and then up into a chair.

"The end of the trail, Sandy," he muttered with a quiet ring of triumph in his voice. "It's been a long trip—but we've arrived at last."

He turned—to find himself covered with the weapon which Marion held. A sudden smile broke over his face.

"Don't blame you," he remarked—and Marion was surprised at the quality of gentleness in his tone. "I must look like a ruffian—though I feel like a very efficient and highly pleased police officer."

Suddenly she realized that those evil eyes were directed upon her with all the vengeance of the handcuffed man's soul behind them.

"Wait till I get out," he muttered. "It'll be some wait," the officer interposed. "You'll do time for the job you tried to frame up against Mr. Hamilton. But there's worse than that coming to you, Sandy Lane."

WAR VETERANS WARNED AGAINST MONEY LENDERS.

Washington, June 23.—War veterans were warned Tuesday by Director Hines of the Veterans' Bureau against money lenders who are attempting to obtain bonus certificates as security.

The director acted after he had been informed by Chief Moran of the Secret Service that 235 adjusted service certificates had been accepted by a money lender in San Antonio.

Director Hines called attention to the law which provides that no loan may be made on adjusted service certificates until after two years from the date of issuance. He said veterans organizations and communities generally throughout the country should assist in protecting the interests of the veterans.

METHODIST REVIVAL CLOSES.

Rev. Hub DeLay has just closed a Revival at the Methodist church. Great crowds attend from the beginning.

Bro. Pfaffenberger led the singing. He is a fine director and soloist. The music was fine from beginning to end.

There is no way of describing the preaching to anyone who never heard Hub DeLay preach. But as the boys would say, "he knew his stuff." We have no way of estimating the good done. We will know more six months from now about this phase of the meeting. But no one doubts that great good was done to all the people who came.

Bro. DeLay's messages were pointed, and powerful and brought deep conviction. Saturday night and Sunday we were favored with solos by Bro. Mack Harvey of Cameron. Mack is a great soloist. We want him to come again.

Brother DeLay and Pfaffenberger made many warm friends while here. The prayers of these friends will follow them.—Rockdale Reporter.

PLAN TO CUT TAXES READY.

Washington, June 23.—An administration tax program to reduce the present tax burden by $300,000,000 has virtually been completed for submission to Congress next fall.

That agreement had been reached on most of the major features of the program was revealed after a conference Tuesday between Secretary Mellon and Chairman Green of the House Ways and Means Committee. The two were said to be in accord except on the question of repealing estate taxes.

The agreements already arrived at do not reach as far as intricate details of tax schedules, but cover in the main the policies to be followed. They will be disclosed later.

The Secretary and Mr. Green went over carefully the budget figures made public at Monday night's business meeting of the Government and shared their discussions in the light of President Coolidge's promise of a tax reduction.

The Treasury will not present a bill of its own, but will submit figures and co-operate with the Ways and Means Committee.

Had Origin in Quoits

The game of horseshoes is based on quoits, which is a pastime resembling the ancient discus-throwing of Greece. Few traces of a game resembling quoits can be found on the continent of Europe and its origin may be sought for on the borderlands of Scotland and England. There are references to it in the midlands, dating from the beginning of the Fifteenth century. Ascham, in his "Toxophilus" (1545), refers to the game as being chiefly by the working classes, who often used horseshoes for want of quoits, a custom still prevailing in country districts.

Designed for Convenience

The position of the hands of a clock is one which has been selected for the reason that it furnishes the greatest facility to meet the requirement for painting the longer name above the hands and the shorter word below. The minute hand has been varied in position from 17 to 25 minutes after 8. Sometimes the longer name requires to be written in a semi-circle above the hands. There have been stories connected with the death of Lincoln, that the position of the hands is commemorative of the hour of the death but this is not true.

Not Really Profanity

It is perfectly correct when you say that "damn" got into bad company and took some of the color of "dama." But what is the origin of the word? "Damn" is not an intensive adjective meaning "very most," as you assume, but is an offshoot of the Shakespearean word "darn, tiern" which signified "terrible," originally "darkened, soiled." A cognate verb is "tarnish" (to soil).—New York Herald Tribune.

In the Edible Class

"Yes," said the teacher, "we have several plants and flowers named with the prefix 'dog.' Of course, the 'dog-rose' and 'dog-violet' are well known to you all. Can any of you tell me others?"

For some seconds the class remained dumb. Then a bright idea illuminated the face of an urchin, and up went his hand. "Collie flowers, Miss!"

Use Electric Shocks for Regulating Hearts

One of the most remarkable of recent medical inventions is the static wave device.

Its purpose is to regulate the beating of the heart, should it be too fast or too slow. The patient sits in an insulated chair connected with a machine which passes an electric current through the body.

Outside the machine is a revolving ball, fixed to the end of a metal rod. Every time this ball passes another stationary ball, electricity is discharged from the body, causing the muscles to relax.

If the heart should be beating 74 times a minute, but is six beats fast, says the Detroit News, the revolving ball is timed to go around at 74 revolutions a minute and the heart is thus slowed down to its correct time. In the same way, the heart can be quickened.

This wonderful machine was exhibited at a recent medical exhibition in London. The force of the current is such that a person putting his hand within six inches of the chair receives a powerful shock.

Turned From Smithy to Watch Designing

The first Swiss watch was made by a blacksmith. In 1680 a distinguished Englishman was traveling through Switzerland when his watch failed him and the nearest approach he could find to a watchmaker was a young blacksmith, Daniel Jean Richard. This young man undertook to repair the watch, which he did successfully. He profited so greatly by this experience in the knowledge he acquired of the design and construction of watches that he became the first watchmaker of the country and the pioneer of a great industry. According to a Swiss watchmaker visiting this country, the district of Neuchatel produces more watches than any similar locality in the world.

FERGUSON THINKS OUTLOOK NOT BAD.

"The drouth is upon us and there's no use trying to kid ourselves that it isn't," Former Governor James E. Ferguson declared yesterday afternoon while in his office here after a trip to this section to visit his farms and attend to other business.

"But this part of the state is not as bad off as some parts," he said. "Nobody will starve even if it doesn't rain and if it should rain in ten days we still have a chance to make nearly as good a cotton crop as last year."

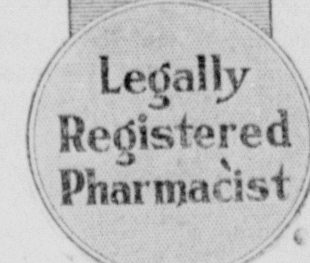

Mr. Ferguson said that he had nothing to say in reply to the interview reported in yesterday's papers ascribed to Former Gov. Neff attacking the Fergusons.

Speaking of the proposed highway east of here, Mr. Ferguson said that he regretted the differences of opinion reported as to the location of the road. "I am sure the highway commission will not want to build a road if it will build a row, and I trust that all parties concerned will agree over some route for the road. It will be necessary for an agreement to be reached to secure the final co-operation of the highway commission and I believe anyone can see that if the people to be served by the road do not get together the road won't go anywhere."—Temple Telegram.

The marriage of Dr. Arthur B. Guinn of Cameron and Miss Loneta Holland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Holland took place Sunday evening at seven o'clock at the First Christian Church. Rev. Chalmers McPherson of T. C. U. performed the ring ceremony. Before the entrance of the wedding party Miss Anna Hortenz Baker of Dallas, cousin of the bride, played "Conzannetta" as a violin solo. Mrs. Anna Pinkerton Baker, aunt of the bride, also of Dallas, sang a pre-nuptial solo "At Dawning." Mrs. W. M. Holland of Dallas accompanied Mrs. Baker and played the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" and Mendelssohn's wedding march. The church was beautifully decorated with smilax ferns and cut flowers.

Master Max L. Holland opened the gates to the altar. The wedding party was led by the ushers Ned, Moe and D. B. Holland, Jr., brothers of the bride. Her slippers were of white satin and her bouquet was of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. The men were dressed in Tuxedos.

Immediately after the ceremony as said Mrs. Royal Stiles of Waco sang "I Love You Truly." The bride presented her attendants vanities while the groom gave his attendants off licks.

They Prayed for Peace

By BERTHA R. McDONALD

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

IT WAS all over.

Swallowed up in one corner of the huge davenport she sat, a pathetic little figure, gazing unseeing into the grate fire, gripping in her hand the mute evidence which decreed that she need never admit him to her home again. At the same time, every fiber of her being was crying out for him, yearning for him, needing him.

And yet, how could any woman with an atom of pride or self-respect have gone on with things as they were? One could forgive brutality, non-support, immorality, any of these things and try to go on, if one loved, but in a case like theirs, where there really was nothing tangible—

The lawyers had named it incompatibility and he had not repudiated the claim.

"But how can I ever live without him?" she moaned aloud, slipping to her knees beside the couch, burying her head among the pillows. "Was I too hasty? Is there some other thing I might have tried? Oh, God," raising her wet eyes prayerfully, "flash the light of Your wisdom upon my pathway and guide me to peace—peace—peace—"

"Go 'way! Wanna Daddy! Never did have 'nough Daddy!"

The childish wail, floating down to her from somewhere above, interrupted her tearful supplication, turning the knife in her heart with a sickening twinge.

His son! His son and hers, who never had had enough daddy! And now, neither of them was even to hear his voice.

The next moment there penetrated through the stillness of the drawing room, unlighted except for the glow from the fire, the sound of a key in the latch, the gentle opening and closing of a door, followed by footsteps coming along the hall. A brand from the fire blazed up and disclosed to the woman upon her knees, the outline of a familiar figure standing in the curtained archway between the hall and the drawing room; a figure bowed as though in mental anguish, unmindful of time or surrounding.

Quietly, on her knees, she slipped along the edge of the davenport, losing herself among the shadows at the end, watching breathlessly, waiting, for what, she could not have told.

Presently the figure moved on toward the grate and stood, apparently absorbed in something pictured to him in the flickering fire. The butler, entering with wood for the fire, seemed to lift him from the apathy into which he had fallen.

"Are—are you stopping for the night, sir?" the surprised butler asked jerkily.

"No—it's only another of my usual mistakes. Forget about being barred—still have my key—used it from force of habit—that's all. I—I'll go in a moment."

"It's quite all right, sir," the servant returned with suppressed excitement. "It's a cold night—I've brought wood—you—you'd better get warm, sir."

Thrusting a log upon the glowing coals, the butler brushed his sleeve coat carefully, glancing furtively meanwhile at the preoccupied man who had so recently been deposed as his master and hurried from the room.

For one long moment the man stood there motionless, then dropped to his knees before the couch in the same spot where but a little while before another suppliant had begged for peace.

"Oh, God," he prayed aloud, his head upon the couch, his hands folded above it, "show me the way! Tell me that I have done right to let them go out of my life forever, still loving them as I do! What is the meaning of it all? What is this hard, cruel thing that stalked like a death-dealing scourge through my home and drove my happiness out? Oh, for peace—peace—peace!"

To the stricken woman crouching on the floor among the shadows there suddenly appeared a great light. Creeping to the man's side she laid her tear-wet face against his folded hands and sobbed aloud.

"My dear—my dear!" The smothered gasps reached the man's ear, penetrating his benumbed consciousness like a ray of silvery moonlight. "I did it for you," the woman went on. "I thought we, the boy and I, the home, everything, annoyed you—bored you. I thought you longed for freedom and I—I only wanted you to have what was necessary to make you happy!"

Slowly unfolding his hands he took her face between his palms and drew it forward to his breast.

The last smoldering spark in the fire died out. The glowing tapestry of the morning spread like a promise in the dull gray of the sky. Still the man and woman sat there, facts shifting and changing ground, the real becoming a shadow, the shadow becoming truth, like things in a flowing mist, until the lamp of their mutual love shone through the fog, lighting the future with a blaze of faith and hope.

And then floating down to them from somewhere above, setting the strings of their hearts vibrating to a sublime harmony, there came the poignant cry:

"Never did have 'nough daddy!"

Miss Ola Mae Powell, Field Agent Southern States, Extension Service, Washington, L. C. Miss Edith McClure Patterson, Dayton, Ohio and other national characters will appear on the program at various times. Their travel, experience and training have rendered them peculiarly capable of entertaining and instructing the attendants at the Short Course.

Any man, woman, boy or girl who desires to study and learn more about the solution of farm and home problems are eligible to register for the Short Course and take advantage of the program which has been especially prepared, since the Short Course is planned to meet the needs of men, women, boys and girls who desire to make farm life more profitable and attractive.

Agriculture.—Work in Agriculture will be held in all the following departments: Animal Husbandry, Dairy Husbandry, Poultry Husbandry, Agronomy, Horticulture, Entomology, Plant Disease, Rural Sociology, Agricultural Economics and Agricultural Engineering. There will also be an exhibit of improved and modern farm machinery and home equipment.

Home Demonstration Work.—Several courses in home demonstration work, especially adapted to the needs of girls and women from rural communities, will be given. The work will consist of lectures and demonstrations in health work, in meal planning, table service, clothing, home improvement and poultry.

CONTESTS.

Boys—A special feature of the Short Course will be a Poultry Judging Contest, a Grain Judging Contest and a Livestock Judging contest. Individual medals will also be given to the boys, consisting of a gold medal for first place, a silver medal for second place and a bronze medal for third place.

Women and Girls—All State contests for home demonstration club girls and women will be held at this time.

Conferences—A large number of the State Agricultural Societies will hold their annual meeting at College during the Short Course, among which are the following: The Extension Workers, consisting of County and Home Demonstration Agents and Specialists, the Superintendent of Experiment Stations, County School Superintendents, County Farm Secretaries, Agricultural Editors, Shippers and Carriers, Texas Bee Keepers Cotton Seed Growers' Association.

The railroads have agreed to make a special rate of one and one-fifth fare for the round trip. All persons attending the Short Course will be charged only the actual cost of meals and lodging.

Automobile Parties and Camp Ground—Those who contemplate attending the Short Course should now begin to organize automobile parties. Everything possible will be done for the convenience of those coming in cars and wagons. They will be given the privilege of obtaining lodging in the dormitories and board in the Mess Hall on same terms as others. A special location near the athletic field has been set aside for camping purposes, and arrangements have been made whereby groceries, vegetables, ice, etc., will be delivered at the camp. However, on account of the extreme low rates for lodging, persons who come overland may find it more satisfactory to secure rooms in the dormitories.

CAMERON EDITOR SPEAKS AT PRESS ASSOCIATION.

morning session with hope of action on the floor on the matter. Mrs. Lee Rountree of the Bryan Eagle is one of the warm supporters of this proposed resolution.

Devoid of any particular nature and lacking in any criticism, the resolution will be a memorializing of the Legislature to pass another appropriation for the school of journalism at the State University and a memorializing of the Governor not to strike out the amount. It will also indorse Dean Will H. Mayes as head of the school and urge his retention in that post.

During the morning the journalism school was brought to the attention of the convention in an address by Moulton Cobb of Cameron, recent graduate of the University, who was editor in chief of the Daily Texan during the last year and a student in the school. His talk was explanatory of the work of the school and full of praise for Dean Mayes, a former president.

Young Cobb, who is now associated with his father, W. M. Cobb, in the editorship of the Cameron Enterprise, declared that the action of Gov. Ferguson in cutting off the appropriations for the school of Journalism and thereby abolishing it "is an insult to the newspaper profession of Texas."

"Her action," he continued, "said to have been done as an economy measure, was uncalled for and can not be justified. When the great State of Texas ranks first in the production of cotton, first in exports and among the leading States of the Union in production of oil, corn and cattle, it is a reflection on our intelligence to say that the State can not afford to teach journalism at its University, which is now as important a profession as law or engineering."

In telling of the work done in the school, Mr. Cobb spoke of the "practical" features of the various courses. He said, for instance, that in the course of feature story writing the best work in daily newspapers of the country was studied among which "is the most excellent Sunday feature section of the Dallas News." Later in his talk he told of the study of style in editorial writing, mentioning the technique of the editorials in the Dallas Morning News as models in this study.

SCOUT NEWS—SUMMER SCOUT CAMP.

Will be held at Belton from July 6th to July 11th. All Cameron Scouts should go to this camp and to do so it is necessary that every Scout register with Scoutmaster Rev. J. P. Love on or before July 2nd, bringing 50 cents for annual Scout dues. Don't put this off, for it must be known before hand how many Scouts are to be provided for.

Belton will furnish tents, cots, water and light and when Scouts register with Scoutmaster Love a list will be given them of articles to be taken to camp.

Those Scouts who have been going on weekly trips with Scoutmasters Tucker, Pollard and Love have been having a big time.

The trip to River Beach was particularly enjoyable as it included a fine swim in the splendid Little River pool, a good supper cooked by the Scouts and last but not least an Indian dance and pow wow around a big camp fire on the beach.

If you boys of Cameron want to have a good time at work and play get in on scouting.

PETERSON-RUBY.

The marriage of Alvin Lawrence Peterson and Miss Lorena Ruby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Henry Ruby, took place at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the First Methodist Church. Dr. Ira F. Key, Pastor of Marvin Memorial church of Tyler, officiated with the ring ceremony.

The church adornment was mainly confined to the altar space where ferns were banked and pink roses clustered in wicker baskets and wall vases made a beautiful setting for the bridal party.

During the prenuptial musicale Mrs. J. L. Clinton played Cantilene Nuptial on the pipe organ followed by Miss Ann Hasur of Lockhart beautifully gowned in lace over pink played as a violin solo, Shumann's Traumerci. Mack Harvey sang gloriously "God Make The Mine" and Mrs. Alex Triggs tenderly sang Cadman's at Dawning each with violin obligato by Miss Ann Masur and pipe organ accompaniment by Mrs. J. L. Clinton who also played the marches for the wedding, favoring Lohengrins for the professional and Mendelssohns for the recessional. During the ceremony Love's Old Sweet Song was played.

Messrs. Alex J. Triggs and B. F. Bonds were ushers.

Mrs. W. A. Bonds sister of the bride, was the beautiful matron of honor. She wore a gown of lace over rose and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

The groom was attended by F. E. Downs of Temple as best man.

The ring bearer, little Miss Mary Ellen Cottle clad in dainty frock of Nile green and lace carried the ring in the heart of an exquisite rose.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Martin Ruby of Lubbock.

The bride wore a gown of ashef of roses georgette with lace trimmings and a most becoming picture hat as did each member of wedding party. The bride's bouquet was of handsome roses and ferns and the chosen colors for her wedding were rose and green and the favored tints were featured as church adornment and home decoration.

After the ceremony the guests proceeded to the bride's home where they were received by the wedding party in the reception hall.

Fruit punch was served by Misses Maureine and Lola Clinton.

After congratulations Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Peterson left for Waco by motor. They will go for a honeymoon trip to Colorado and Salt Lake City and before their return will visit Mr. and Mrs. Martin Ruby in Lubbock. They will be at home in Waco after July 14th.

J. H. CABLE OF McKINNEY IS CALLED TO HIS REWARD
BY DEATH.

F. B. Cable was called to McKinney last Wednesday to attend the funeral of his grand father, J. H. Cable who died very suddenly. The following was taken from the McKinney Courier:

"J. H. Cable aged 82 years, 4 month and one day, suddenly passed away at his home 708 West Hunt street this Wednesday at seven a. m. He had been in feeble health for several years and while his death was entirely unexpected yet it was a shock to his many friends and relatives.

Deceased was able to come down town one day about a week ago but took suddenly ill and had to be taken to his home. This morning he arose as usual after a good night's sleep, dressed himself and sat down to breakfast, and ate as heartily as usual. His wife went out of the room for a few minutes and when she returned found him lying dead with his head against the wall and one arm on the table, life had suddenly passed from this respected old pioneer citizen. He died peacefully just as he had lived during his entire life.

NOTICE.

The W. M. U. of the North Elm Baptist church will give a cream supper at that place Saturday June 27, at 8 p. m. Light refreshments, cream and cold drinks will be served to all who come. Proceeds to be used for repair of church building.

MRS. WILLARD CHATMAN,
President.

Evans' Corner

Every once and a while we have some one to come in for glasses and find that one eye is almost blind. Often we find that the same lens will not fit both eyes.

Many people believe that all lenses are of the same quality. There is as much difference in a Crown Glass Ophthalmic Lens as there is in a farm or a piece of domestic.

The point is this: You get just what you pay for.

If you value your eyes, have them examined by one who knows how to do it—and then get good Lenses.

We have an office equipped for giving you just the good service you want.
